6/3/19 – Michael Allen, Rocky Mountain Conservancy

. Michael Allen, originally from Oklahoma, is new with the Conservancy, serving just a couple of months, but he demonstrated that he knows his subject well. The Conservancy (1931) represents the nonprofit part of the Rocky Mountain National Park, which was established in 1915. Its founders hoped to stimulate interest in the park’s natural and cultural history. The Conservancy has provided more than $33 million to the park since 1985. As a nonprofit organization allied with the National Park Service, The Colorado State Parks, the US Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, and the US Fish & Wildlife Service, the Conservancy has developed special programs which include the following: Rocky Mountain National Park Fund (trail rehabilitation), Conservancy Field Institute (outdoor learning adventures), Conservancy Nature Stores (educational & interpretive information), The Next Generation Fund (Junior Ranger program & internships), and Conservancy Conservation Corps (work crews). To learn more, go to: www.RMConservancy.org.

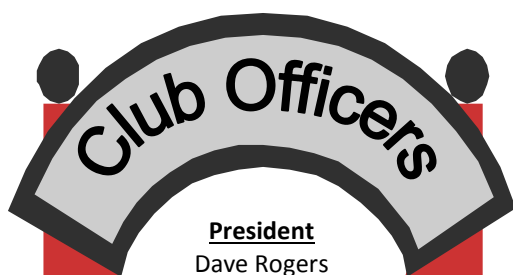

6/10/19 - Steve Hinson Habit for Humanity

Unfortunately, we did not connect with our speaker on June 10th. However, we did have impromptu talks from some local members starting with Steve Hinson from Habitat. Steve talked about the Service to Seniors (formerly Retired Seniors Volunteer Program - RSVP). This service helps older retirees with snow shoveling and other tasks that are physically difficult. In addition, the service offers transportation for medical appointments and maintenance tasks such as lawn care. Steve also told the members that he is competing in the Paraclimbing National Championships and will attend this year’s World Cup competition in Bariaujon, France.

Brian Coleman talked about attending this year’s International Scouting Jamboree held in Beckley, West Virginia. There will be many activities including white water rafting and mountain hiking. One of the highlights will be a display of the costumes worn in the home countries represented by the various scouts from around the world. Brian has previously attended international jamborees in Sweden and the United Kingdom.
